Juror's Statement

I was honored to be invited to jury the Danforth Museum's annual Off the Wall exhibition this year. As I had recently returned to the Boston-area after a twelve year hiatus, I was grateful for the opportunity this project afforded me to re-familiarize myself with the range of art-making that is taking place in the region. It was a pleasure to see the aesthetic ambitions of the applicants and to note the wide range of materials, methods and styles that are being pursued today in and around Boston.

The works that I selected have very little in common with each other or with any curatorial premise. I was drawn to selecting work that I believe reflects well the singular ambition of the individual artist. Whether this was technique, beauty, innovation, political or social expression, I was drawn to works that capture the integrity of a unique vision.

Congratulations to those artists selected and to all the applicants for your commitment to making art. I hope you will continue to create for your pleasure as well as that of those with whom you choose to share it.

Thank you to Katherine French, Director and Jessica Roscio, Assistant Curator for your hard work and commitment in consistently presenting this exhibition series as a forum to encourage artists and celebrate the creative process.
